

Contents

Acknowledgements.....	xi
Prologue.....	xiii
Introduction	1
Famous Writers in Transit	13
Franz-Werfel: Jacobowsky and the Colonel	17
Alma Mahler-Werfel: Mein Leben (My Life)	24
Arthur Koestler: Scum of the Earth	28
Lion Feuchtwanger: The Devil in France	37
Marta Feuchtwanger: Nur eine Frau (Only a Woman)	44
Alfred Döblin: Destiny's Journey	47
Transit Postponed.....	61
Narratives by the ‘Trustees of European Culture’.....	61
Preserving European Culture.....	63
A City without Men: Fiction on Gurs.....	75
A Memoir of Gurs	79
A Camp for ‘Politically Dangerous’ Men: Le Vernet.....	84
Life in a Transit Camp: The Road to Les Milles.....	95
Dying in a Transit Camp: Les Milles.....	100
An Exile returns Home: Theodor Wolff.....	103
Remembering the Artists: Portraits of Artists.....	106
Final Snapshots	111

Narratives of ‘Die kleinen Leute’: a Longer Transit.....	117
A New Identity: The Seidler-Weidel syndrome	118
Aligned with the Wrong Identity: Bureaucratic Hassles of the Mixed Marriage.....	120
No Identity: the Stateless.....	123
Political Identity: Interning Undesirable and/or Dangerous Women in Rieucros and Brens.....	127
A Network of Camps.....	133
Shunted from Camp to Camp: Excerpts from Camp Narratives.....	133
Work Unit Camps.....	135
Gurs: Different Phases.....	137
Deported West: The Jews from Baden and the Pfalz Arrive in Gurs	140
Last Impressions of Home, First Impressions of France.....	141
‘Vacationing’ in France	147
The Threat of the Transports.....	150
Narratives of the Deportations.....	152
1942: Women from Rieucros	154
 Transit of Children.....	 165
Written Narratives: Loss of Childhood.....	165
Refugee Children: Loss of the Mother Tongue.....	166
Girls in Exile and Hiding	168
A Lament for the Mother/land.....	170
Farewell to the Mother/land.....	177
Motherless Boys, Resisting Sons	180
Writing about the Children.....	184
German and Austrian Children in France: Hard to Place	185
The Work of Rescue	186

Rivesaltes: “The Dumping Site for Children in Transit”	189
Hearing the Voices: Audio Visual Testimony	190
A Girl from Baden	191
An Austrian Girl	195
‘Sites of Memory’	199
The Children of Izieu	201
Conclusion: Seeing the Faces	202
Transit to Higher Ground	209
Historians Describe the Transit of German and Austrian Jews
to and from France: 1933–45.....	217
1933: A Shared Identity	218
A Mixed Message.....	219
The Blum Years.....	220
Cultural and Political Activities: German Refugees
Maintain a United Front.....	221
Rising Tensions: 1938	224
Interning Refugees: The First Reception Center	226
Germans and Austrians Rejected as Friends of France: Interning the Dangerous.....	227
The Phony War: Undesirables, Possibly Communists,
Fifth Columnists, but Certainly Enemies of France	228
Protected by Chaos: Debacle, Armistice and the Summer of 1940	232
The Search for ‘True’ Germans.....	232
Camps of the New State.....	234
Legionnaires	238
More Jewish than German: The Jewish Statutes	239
German Jews Head West to Gurs in France: October 1940	241

The Threat of Deportations.....	242
Transports from the South	244
German Jews and the Deportations	246
The Last Transports.....	247
Public Opinion	248
International Response	248
The Vichy Camps Close.....	249
Epilogue	255
Bibliography.....	273
Index.....	283